Recommended Local Guide

Fukuoka's attractions include tonkotsu ramen, mizutaki, and motsunabe But that's not all.

In fact, Fukuoka has the largest number of fish in Japan, the largest consumption of chicken, and the largest number of yakitori (grilled chicken) restaurants in Japan. In fact, Fukuoka is home to some of the best “everyday foods,” both fish and meat.

Kiyokawa in Chuo-ku is where you can really taste such “normal” Fukuoka food. Away from the hustle and bustle of the tourist areas, this area is within walking distance of many famous restaurants frequented by locals and stores that will stimulate your senses.

It would be a shame to just stay here.

Walk, eat, and feel as if you were living in the area. Add Fukuoka's “hilariously rich everyday life” to your travel memories.
